

Blue Man

Argyria had turned Paul Karason's skin so blue that he was dubbed Blue Man by the media in 2007/2008. He was interviewed on several major television talk shows including Oprah's show.

For about 12 years, Paul drank Colloidal Silver made with salt in the water to increase conductivity. This meant the particle size was larger than Ionic Colloidal Silver made with a Constant Current unit or by heating the water to increase conductivity.

For a few of those years he was a caregiver for his parents. When his father's health worsened in late 1998, the stress caused a lifelong skin condition to flare up--severe dermatitis. The skin would crack and peel on his face. So Paul started spraying Colloidal Silver on his face twice daily as it helped reduce the problem. In addition, at this time, he was sometimes drinking as much as two glasses of Colloidal Silver a day.

After applying Colloidal Silver to his face for about three months, a friend he hadn't seen for a long while came to visit. He noticed right away that Paul's skin had a bluish tinge. Paul's doctor ordered a heavy metals test. His system was clear of heavy metals and while his silver level was slightly higher than normal, it was well within safe limits.

Paul had noticed so many benefits from drinking Colloidal Silver that he didn't want to stop:

1. Acid Reflux disappeared.
2. Sinus Congestion that he'd had since childhood drained and healed.
3. The pain of stiffness from Arthritis in his shoulders disappeared.

During interviews, Paul always said he didn't mind his blue color as he felt it protected his sensitive skin from the usual sunburns. He was in no hurry to reverse the condition. We presented a program to reverse Argyria to Paul using a Far Infrared Sauna and a special supplement program. Later in 2008, however, a friend loaned him an ionic footbath device. Paul felt that with regular use of this unit, his skin was slowly getting lighter in color.